

Sour Bridges

"Lovely harmonies... Their ingredients blend into a stew of just plain out good music."

-Americana Highways

Bio

Sour Bridges is that browngrass band from Austin, TX. And if you're wondering; Browngrass is like bluegrass, but a little dirtier, with a rock edge, and occasionally some waltz's, but who's counting. Assembled in 2010, the bands line up includes frontmen Bill and brother Matt Pucci; originally from the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. They moved to Austin to pursue a life of music and hardship. With an eclectic rhythm section, Willl Vaughan on bass, and Marc Henry on drums, Sour Bridges have created their own style of back porch roots mixed with your favorite good ol' fashioned rock music.

This band turns the folk up a notch with some hard twangin' banjo, fiddlin' and a dry-clean only mini-guitar that some folks refer to as a mandolin. In essence, they are a string band gone wild, with a knack for some savory three part harmonies. Sour Bridges' live show is a high energy performance and an overall enchanting experience bound to get those feet dancing, and those drinks flowing.
